THE SEMINAR'S CONCEPT

The 44th Southeast Asia Seminar seeks to provide grounds for reflection and comparison by presenting a selection of "case studies" through which prominent experts based in the region adopt a variety of perspectives—historical, epidemiological, political, economic and socio-cultural—to critically examine the connectivity, impact, and implications of the pandemic, the challenges and lessons it poses, and the policy, market, and quotidian responses adopted by different actors in and across nations and regions.
